Simple Songs in Cantonese

Singing is a great way to improve fluency, and I can guarantee you will put a smile on any native Cantonese speaker's face with these simple tunes. Don't let your brain tell you you can't sing either. I actually had singing lessons and found that I knew very little about how to use my voice in English - no wonder I struggled in other languages!

Guess what? With practice you will improve. Some of these songs I have picked up from sending my kids to the local kindergarten. Others I have invented. While it can be difficult to learn Cantonese through songs because they artists tend to use the written form of the language, all of these use the spoken form.

Sometimes the tune works well with the tones. Other times be aware that you need to be careful to use the proper tone when you speak - trying to match tones to the tune is a challenge. It sounds great when you get it right and hilarious when you don't.

4. Two Tigers is a traditional Chinese song.

兩 loeng5 = two, 隻 zek3 = measure word for animals, 老虎 lou5 fu2 = tiger, 跑 paau2 = run, 得 dak1 = placed between a verb and an adjective, it turns the adjective into an adverb, 快 faai3 = fast (so 跑得快 paau2 dak1 faai3 = run quickly), 一隻 jat1 zek3 = one (tiger), 沒有 mut6 jau5 = doesn't have (written form, in speaking we just say: 冇 mou5) 眼睛 ngaan5 zing1 = eyes, 嘴巴 zeoi2 baa1 = mouth, 真 zan1 = really, 奇怪 kei4 gwaai1 = strange.

Sing this one to the tune of Frère Jacques.

兩隻老虎 兩隻老虎

5. Let It Be (Jo's version)

我唔開心 ngo5 m4 hoi1 sam1 = I'm not happy, 有好多麻煩 jau5 hou2 do1
maa4 faan4 = have so much trouble, 做乜嘢 zou6 mat1 je5 = do what, 開心
啲 hoi1 sam1 di1 = a bit happier, 飲啲嘢 jam2 di1 je5 = drink something, 講
咁樣 gong2 gam2 joeng6 = say like this: 冇事 mou5 si6 = it doesn't matter (often heard when a child falls down to encourage them not to cry and just get one with it - but note the way that the tones do not fit with the tune!)

我唔開心，有好多麻煩

ngo5 m4 hoi1 sam1, jau5 hou2 do1 maa4 faan4

做乜嘢開心啲？

Keep singing, but remember: once you have the sound, you must also make sure you have the right tone. The melody of the song does not always follow the tones of Cantonese and I challenge you to try to get the tone right. What does that do to the melody? Keep practicing and make up your own songs to share with me.
